The Best of Both Worlds: CineMassive Displays Combines the Benefits of Large Displays and Multiple Displays in 30" Models

CineMassive Displays Now Offering Multiple Monitor Arrays with 30" Screens

Atlanta, GA – April 3, 2007 – Combining the benefits of using large displays and the benefits of using multiple displays, CineMassive Displays' 30-series provide the ideal multi-monitor experience for maximum productivity gains with a central 30" display and multiple peripheral displays. The new arrays include the MasterPlex 30D, Spectrum 30D, Trio 30D, and Trio 30DX. Pricing and specifications are available at www.cinemassivedisplays.com.

Over the past few years, growing numbers of computer users have become aware of the benefits of using multiple displays. However, some people still contend that one large display is ideal. The CineMassive Displays' 30-series offers the best of both worlds, combining multiple large displays in a variety of configurations.

A few example users who will benefit from this type of configuration include: a graphic designer who needs one large central work space but still wants room for palettes, secondary programs, and web browsing; financial traders who need to look at a variety of types of data across multiple screens; a control room operator who needs to simultaneously monitor real-time data and make important decisions from one system. These users will see an immediate return on investment from increased productivity, reduced frustrations, and a more enjoyable computer experience. CineMassive Displays' unique configurations provide the optimal display experience for people who want to get the most out of their system.
